Ph.D. Dissertation Title

"Law and Practice of Modern Islamic Finance in Australia".

This dissertation examined the extent to which Islamic financial service providers in Australia adhere to the strict notion of Islamic financing through:
 a) developing a methodological approach to introduction of the sources of the Shariah, and the application of the Islamic legal principles of financial transactions to Islamic finance; b) elucidating theories of financial regulations and historical evolution of financial products to provide the contextual background required for the research; and c) examining the practice and compliance requirements of Islamic finance in the Australian legal context.
